

CONFRONTING MODERN SLAVERY: PROSECUTING SEX TRAFFICKERS

APRIL 24, 2012

MARYMOUNT MANHATTAN COLLEGE

Tuesday, April 24, at Marymount Manhattan College

221 East 71st St., NYC

5:30 pm refreshments

6:00 - 8:30 pm program

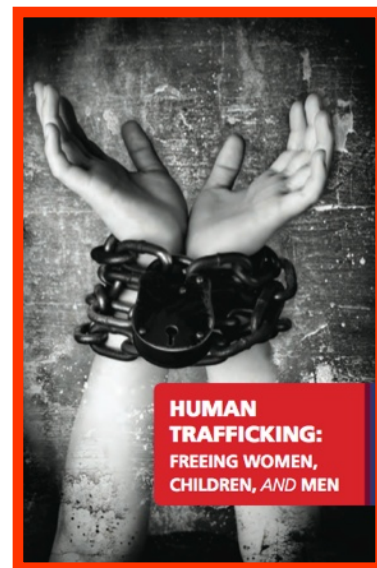

Today, the trafficking of men, women and children is an egregious crime against those enslaved by the modern traffickers as well as an assault on the moral, legal and philosophic standards we accept as members of a global society. Our three panelists will look at the legal system currently being applied at state, national and international levels. Following presentations by the panelists, there will be participatory discussion to identify actions that might be taken to expand and strengthen efforts to prosecute, convict and impose appropriate sentences on sex traffickers.

Pre-registration required at www.networkforpeace.com/forum.html
or by mail - NetworkforPeace, 240 East 93 St. #3H, NY, NY 10128

Cost: $25

Panelists

- Dorota Gierycz - Senior Fellow, European Center for Human Rights and Democratization (EIUC), Venice and Norwegian Institute of International Affairs, Oslo
- Tanya Henderson - National Director of the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom, U.S. Section (WILPF-U.S.)
- Laura Russell - Supervising attorney of Family Law Unit of the Bronx Neighborhood Office and the Harlem Community Law Office of the Legal Aid Society, also Co-Supervising Attorney of the Domestic Violence/Immigration Unit

Sponsored by:

Anglican Women's Empowerment; the International Institute on Peace Education-IIPE; the Network for Peace through Dialogue; the National Peace Academy

